SESSION 5 - WHO'S NEXT? NEXT GENERATION OF LOGISTICS

This session will explore who will become the future leaders in our companies and what will attract them to not only join organizations and the industry, but retain them. Many companies will be challenged to redefine how they change corporate cultures and structures to attract the best talent in many functional areas within the Food Industry. Our panel will discuss how their respective companies have proactively worked towards this evolving dynamic and our industry with a review of what has worked successfully and the lessons learned. The overall challenge specific to Logistics is how to prepare the future talent to understand the rapidly changing landscapes in Supply Chain globally. What do the future leaders expect in the short and long term in their journey to understand their companies core business and how they can impact the specific Logistics functions.

SESSION 7 - CLEARED HOT! VERNICE "FLY GIRL" ARMOUR- AMERICA'S FIRST AFRICAN AMERICAN FEMALE COMBAT PILOT

America's first African American female combat pilot by the Department of Defense. You HAVE Permission to Engage Employee engagement, customer engagement, team engagement, personal engagement. No matter what area an organization is strategically trying to improve, individuals have to be engaged and execute in order for the plan to move forward! The key is giving the permission to engage from the inside out. Once that happens, your organization will be CLEARED HOT! There's no secret...a solid flight plan is the key. Give your attendees a fast paced message that will show them how to:

- Harness the power of a 'Breakthrough Mentality' mindset
- Leverage functional and individual diversity as a strategic advantage
- Lead through mentorship
- Create breakthroughs for their teams with five simple steps

Vernice "Fly Girl" Armour
