ARE YOU PREPARED? SUPPLY CHAIN DISASTER SIMULATION EXERCISE

How would you respond to a crisis to supply items desperately needed after a disaster? Food Shippers of America in partnership with American Logistics Aid Network (ALAN) offer this game-based session putting you in the role of a business, non-profit, or government organization working to deliver critical commodities to a community following a disruptive event. You'll race against time to keep supplies moving while confronting challenges common to disaster. Performance metrics will be reviewed using data visualizations, and attendees will explore strategies for addressing real world supply chain risks simulated during the session. Attendees should bring a WIFI enabled smartphone or tablet to participate in this session.

SESSION 3 - LET'S TALK: COMPENSATION VS TOTAL REWARDS IN TODAY'S TRANSPORTATION WORKPLACE

With record low unemployment and increased margin pressure, today's transportation companies are increasingly challenged to attract, retain and motivate good employees who will be a good cultural fit and can help drive up profits. Compensation is important, but it is by no means the entire equation. Benefits, work-life balance, career advancement – all of these (and more) make up the total rewards package that enables a company to truly thrive when it comes to recruiting, retention and return. Beth Carroll, a compensation consultant who has worked with over 150 transportation companies on compensation design, will moderate a panel of industry executives to gain their insights into the best way to use pay, as well as the other components of total rewards, to attract, retain and motivate the BEST teammates.
