EXPERIENCE

Cameron Black is a Building Consultant with a new and adapting view of the restoration industry, having interned with the RMC Group during his studies at Texas A&M. He joined the RMC Group looking for a unique career path that other construction agencies could not offer, teaming up with the industry's leading experts to develop his skillsets. Cameron is quick to calculate estimates and possesses a fresh understanding of building standards, material usage, and market costs. He has worked independently and with several RMC teams to consult on multi-unit, large losses by inspecting damages, preparing loss scopes, and writing estimates.

Cameron's training in project management, loss assessment, and mitigation planning combines modern practices with veteran knowledge. He looks to continue growing his skills with RMC Group—offering exceptional speed of service and professional representation for his clients.
