

Taking control of compliance in Aged Care as industry standards increase

Compliance, qualification & competency management of Personal Care Workers is becoming more regulated. Reducing the risk of non-compliance by introducing reliable systems that digitally track staff records is essential.

Three ways of improving in these areas are:

Workforce screening

Simplify the process of producing criminal history checks & accessing reliable prior misconduct or disciplinary information

Understand the English proficiency levels of your workforce

Tracking competency in real-time

Mandate, verify & track the minimum qualifications & tickets for care workers

Demonstrate a record of continuous professional development (CPD)

Real-time records of safety-critical worker data

Cross-sector portability of credentials

Increase industry standards & reduce duplication of cost and effort by supporting the transferability of checks & clearances between organisations & industries.

Data transparency & collaboration
