Our promise to you is We Do More.
What does that mean? Simply, we go further and deeper in every aspect of our offering to you and that promise extends way beyond just our products!

How can you provide a better service than the manufacturer?

You could argue that who knows a machine better than the company that built it, right? It's a fair point, but we are way more than simply compressor service people, and we feel that no one knows uses of compressed air and applications better than us. We have lots of experience taking care of compressors from every brand imaginable. We have a dedicated Air Academy in the United States where we cross-train our technicians. Plus, we are prepared to test our knowledge against anyone – give us a try and we will let you decide.

Is local service better?

Local service is always better and that's exactly what we promise you. The team working with you live and work within the territory. However, you can be assured that the local team is backed-up by 40,000 colleagues across the globe. Globally, no one sells more air compressors than Atlas Copco, which makes it a case of name a brand and we can tell you about a facility where we are controlling the air system. If you would like to speak to any as a reference, just let us know and we will make it happen.

How can you access the parts needed to perform service?

Joining with a world leading manufacturer of compressed air systems opens up many new channels to high-quality OEM genuine and proven parts. We even have a dedicated, verified, parts brand to enable us to service any brand of compressors and ensure a smooth flow of any consumables needed.
