Software entrepreneur, Bitcoin (BSV) developer, and co-founder of Twetch, Matterpool, etc. Bitcoin Association Ambassador for USA & Germany, Chair of Bitcoin Community Group

Joshua Petty, or Josh Petty, is an American Serial Entrepreneur focused on building a new breed of internet applications on Bitcoin SV. Josh is a Co-Founder and CEO of Twetch.com, an ad-free social media application where you can profit from content creation and own your data. Twetch has recently launched encrypted messaging and in-chat payments to the platform and will continue to develop the platform based on user feedback.

You may know him as Elon Moist or @Coinyeezy on Twitter, where he has around 22,000 followers. Josh is a self-professed 'Serial Entrepreneur' and 'Adventure Capitalist' who has spent much of the last ten years developing software, before turning his attention towards building with Bitcoin SV blockchain.

He discovered Bitcoin during his college years, and it eventually led him to develop the decentralised social networking app – Twetch. Josh's resolve to provide an alternative to the current 'backward' functionality of social media, has translated into one of the most used Bitcoin SV applications, with over 25,000 users, and generating an average of about 4,000 transactions a day.

One of Bitstocks goals is to build a platform that gives users sovereignty over their own data and the opportunity to monetise it efficiently. Josh's successful development of a product that realises these goals, as well as the fervour with which the public has adopted Twetch, makes him a source of knowledge for the Bitstocks board.
