Is it possible to manage workflow and streamline processes for all your regulatory, disclosure and shareholder communications?

Managing the process of content creation and delivery from data feeds through delivery can be a cumbersome, complicated process. Many times, the process spans across multiple systems, requires manual workflows, constant management and provides little insight into metrics around data validation, production tracking, deliverability or engagement.

Toppan Merrill Content Control is ideal for organizations of any size that want to manage content across a range of communications materials and reports. Toppan Merrill Content Control uses next-generation technology to revolutionize content creation and working group collaboration. This easy-to-use, cloud-based solution delivers a secure, hassle-free experience for authoring, editing and managing shared content from internal and external contributors while delivering performance superior to any other solution on the market.
