Content Management System (CMS)

What is the most frustrating
part of using your CMS?

Technology doesn't get truly interesting
until it becomes almost invisible.

Clay Shirky, NYU

The more advanced the technology, the easier it becomes
to manage.

If that's the case, then we've gotten content management systems all wrong.

The traditional CMS has gotten this backwards.
