ATA PRESIDENT, DR. JOE KVEDAR, TESTIFIES AT SENATE COMMITTEE HEARING ON TELEHEALTH

Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions
Telehealth: Lessons from the COVID-19 Pandemic

WASHINGTON, DC, JUNE 17, 2020 – American Telemedicine Association (ATA) President, Joseph C. Kvedar, MD, testified today before the full Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions (HELP) on telehealth, urging policymakers to “take specific actions before the end of the public health emergency to make access to telehealth services permanent.”

In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, Congress and the federal government have removed many of the antiquated barriers to telehealth that have traditionally kept providers from reaching their patients remotely. As a result, telehealth has saved lives, helped reduce the spread of the virus, and enabled providers to scale the response of an overwhelmed health system during the pandemic. During today’s hearing, senators asked witnesses how these regulatory flexibilities have improved access to care and what policies should remain permanent when the public health emergency ends.

To ensure patients—including Medicare beneficiaries—continue to be empowered with the option to use telehealth, Dr. Kvedar and the ATA are urging Congress to move quickly to enact targeted telehealth reform legislation before the public health emergency declaration is rescinded.

“I have seen first-hand the many ways telehealth bridges the gap between a critical provider shortage and a growing patient population – a problem that existed prior to the pandemic, and one that will only worsen,” said Kvedar, Professor, Harvard Medical School, Senior Advisor, Virtual Care, Mass General Brigham (Partners HealthCare), and ATA President. “However, we need Congress’s support to ensure patients and providers do not go over the telehealth ‘cliff’ as our nation eventually emerges from the pandemic. We must make sure that essential telehealth services do not abruptly end with the public health emergency, especially as we look to reorient our healthcare system to deliver 21st century care.”
