You might think that all background checks are alike, but there is a big difference between what is considered a traditional direct court house search and a multi-jurisdictional criminal database search. Depending on the type of search you choose, the difference in results can be astounding. Now more than ever, it is important to complement a traditional county search with a multi-jurisdictional criminal database search like the US OneSEARCH® or US AliasSEARCH. You don't want to miss records that could have easily been found with a database search. This combined approach is a cost-effective way to broaden your search and get a more accurate picture of your subject.

Easy-to-read Report Design

The lay-out and logic of the report pages are designed with compliance in mind. To make it easier to review criminal records we have added a timeline to the report. It shows all years in which a criminal record appears. The timeline will go back a minimum of 7 years. If the report includes a court house search and the Years to Search Back setting is greater than 7, then the report will go back as far as the number of years searched. If the report finds an instant search hit further back than that, the timeline will go back all the way to the first hit found. In addition, on the timeline you can see how old the subject was at the time of the crime and how long ago it has been since the crime was committed.

This way it will be easier to consider those factors in relation to the severity of the crime. Read more about our Smart Report Design.
