

Consulting Towards Outcomes

Proactive and Prepared

Striving for organizational excellence should include practices that provide an understanding of necessary resources, priority alignment of services, and entrepreneurial advancement and revenue generation opportunities. These outcomes come from data confidence and the ability to communicate easily with decision-makers. The proven practice of Program Based Business Intelligence provides that confidence and trust through transparency.

Proactive and Prepared

Data Creation and Communication

Trust, Transparency and Accountability

Driving constructive conversation begins with data you can count on and support. Aligning resources and priorities with the services provided give confidence and transparency to communicate and make decisions that easily translate from local government organizations to elected officials and the community.

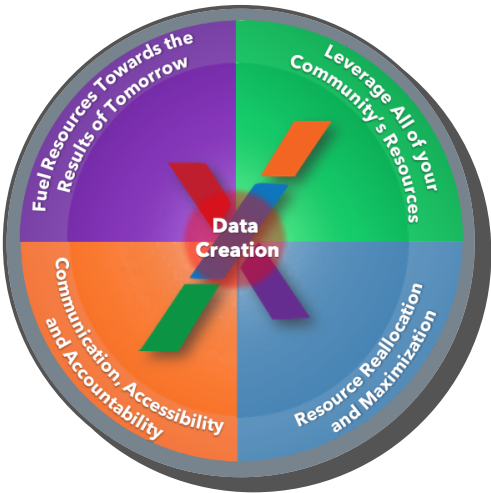

Trust, Transparency and Accountability

Leveraging All of Your Community's Resources

Shortfall Solutions

The circumstances of the budget, made more pronounced as a result of COVID-19, lead to the understanding that data-driven solutions are needed. These solutions must increase our ability to communicate clearly and concisely the realities of our circumstances. They must also drive trust through transparency regarding where existing resources are being applied so that the decisions made can be understood and tied back to the data.

Shortfall Solutions

Fuel Resources Towards the Results of Tomorrow

Power of Shared Purpose

The need to share resources and consider entrepreneurial approaches is a shift every local government must recognize and explore. Partnerships can be to serve a specific objective or to search for innovative efficiencies. Siloed departments and organizations are not helping, nor have they ever served, the greater good. Programmatic data provides a shared language to increase innovation, utilize existing expertise, and efficiently offer the highest quality services to your community.

Power of Shared Purpose

New Programs, Priorities and Projects

The reality is that we live in an ever-changing world, and local governments are challenged to meet those changes to serve their communities best. Taking up that responsibility requires careful and meaningful stewardship of resources to ensure they are used appropriately and efficiently. It also means rising to the challenge of initiating new services when the needs arise. To do so with limited resources is an endeavor of innovation, including identifying opportunities for reallocation and new revenue generation.

Resource Reallocation and Maximization

New Programs, Priorities and Projects

Liz Johnston
johnston@resourcex.net
Erik Fabian
efabian@resourcex.net